“People mourned for Notre Dame when it was in flames because they value tradition, they yearn for legacy, and they see the past, not as a series of shameful episodes best forgotten, but as the source of what we know and who we are and what we ourselves must now do for future generations. They felt grief-stricken because they want Notre Dame to stand for the rest of time. It will.”

~ Brendan O’Neill ~

The destruction of Notre Dame Cathedral is a metaphor for the destruction and erasure of our European heritage.

Why we wept for Notre Dame by Brendan O’Neill

The vast majority of people recognised that something of immeasurable human worth was under threat. What the widespread humanist concern for the fate of Notre Dame spoke to is people’s continued attachment to the ideal of legacy, to what is in many ways the founding principle of human civilisation: that we transmit culture and knowledge and art from one generation to the next. We recognised that the flames were consuming more than wood and stone; they were consuming tradition, the past itself. And for all of today’s cult of the new, most people recognise that our societies and our lives only make sense as a result of the gains of the past transmitted to us by our elders, which we then transmit to the next generation.

Notre Dame: An Omen by Dennis Prager

The symbolism of the burning of Notre Dame Cathedral, the most renowned building in Western civilization, the iconic symbol of Western Christendom, is hard to miss. It is as if God Himself wanted to warn us in the most unmistakable way that Western Christianity is burning -- and with it, Western civilization. In terms of what the fire represented, it doesn't much matter. What matters is the omen: Europe is burning, just as Notre Dame was.

The Silence of the Bells: Notre Dame Cathedral in Ashes

In its lifetime, it has seen the highest points and the darkest hours of France. It has become the visual symbol of the ability of Paris—and all of France—to survive revolution, cruel monarchs, wars, and country-wide occupation by Nazis. The 12 million annual visitors to Notre Dame serve as proof that it is much more than just a Medieval Gothic church. It is Paris.

European Churches: Vandalized, Defecated On, and Torched "Every Day"

Hardly anyone writes and speaks about the increasing attacks on Christian symbols. There is an eloquent silence in both France and Germany about the scandal of the desecrations and the origin of the perpetrators.... Not a word, not even the slightest hint that could in anyway lead to the suspicion of migrants... It is not the perpetrators who are in danger of being ostracized, but those who dare to associate the desecration of Christian symbols with immigrant imports. They are accused of hatred, hate speech and racism.

Notre Dame Fire: Here's What We Know About What Started It

This 13th century timber frame was extremely protected. Each intervention is always accompanied by historians, architects, experts; no work is envisaged without extreme caution; no source of heat, no torch, no electrical apparatus is allowed; a high-performance alarm system is in place; and very strict supervision of all people allowed there. I think we will eventually learn that this was arson."

Holy Smoke – Reflections on a Fire by Bruce Bawer

Among the consequences of the Islamic invasion of Europe has been the widespread vandalism of churches. Coincidentally, only the day before the Notre Dame fire, Raymond Ibrahim noted at the Gatestone Institute website that in 2018 there had been 1,063 reported acts of damage to Christian churches, statues, etc., in France. It's an open secret that the overwhelming number of perpetrators are Muslims. As Notre Dame went up in smoke, it was only natural to wonder if adherents of the Religion of Peace had decided to go for the big time and commemorate the start of Holy Week by taking down France's most iconic church.

The Cross Still Stands Amid the Ruins of Destruction

One wonders how many refugee Muslims were working on the restoration and refurbishing of the 850-year-old cathedral. Isn't that a question that should be asked inasmuch as the fire started in two different places according to LCI, a French TV station, and during Christians' Holy Week? During nine centuries there was never a single fire in Notre Dame. Saint Sulpice, briefly burst into flames on March 17, the fire damaging doors and stained glass windows on the building's exterior. Police later reported that the incident had not been an accident. An illegal Muslim immigrant had tried to burn down Saint Sulpice.

Notre Dame Burns with Stefan Molyneux

Incredible precautions are taken even on a regular construction site. So, imagine how careful people would have to be when working on one of the most famous major historical and famous landmarks in the world? Was it massive carelessness or was it just an “oopsie”? Or could it be arson? I suspect the latter.

A HERO

Rev. Jean-Marc Fournier, chaplain of the Paris Fire Department, was credited with risking his life to save some priceless relics. Among the objects they saved were the crown of thorns said to have been worn by Jesus, the tunic of Saint Louis and a piece of wood and a nail believed to have been part of the cross used in the crucifixion.

A chaplain with the Paris Fire Brigade since 2011, Father Fournier, 53, saw the bodies of the journalists and cartoonists killed at the Charlie Hebdo newsroom in January 2015. He was also at the scene shortly after an attacker stormed a kosher supermarket two days later. And he was among the hundreds of firefighters who evacuated survivors at the Bataclan concert hall during the Paris attacks in November 2015, where 90 people died in a terrorist attack.

Father Fournier also served in the diocese of the French Armed Forces in Afghanistan in 2008, when an ambush in the Uzbini Valley left 10 soldiers dead.

Some Historical Facts About Notre-Dame de Paris:

The cathedral, whose name means Our Lady, is the seat of the archbishop of Paris.

The cathedral was built on a small island called the Île de la Cité, in the middle of the Seine. Construction began in 1163, during the reign of King Louis VII, and was completed in 1345. It is considered a jewel of medieval Gothic architecture.

It was damaged and neglected in the 1790s, during the French Revolution. Victor Hugo’s 1831 novel, “Notre-Dame of Paris,” published in English as “The Hunchback of Notre Dame,” informed readers about the building’s decrepit condition.

The book helped spur significant overhauls from 1844 to 1864, when the architects Jean-Baptiste-Antoine Lassus and Eugène-Emmanuel Viollet-le-Duc redid the spire and flying buttresses.

Henry VI of England was made king of France inside Notre-Dame in 1431.

Napoleon Bonaparte, who also sought to save the storied cathedral, was crowned emperor there in 1804.

In 1909, Joan of Arc, who had helped France battle the English and was burned at the stake centuries earlier, was beatified in the cathedral by Pope Pius X.

The cathedral, where Mass is still offered on Sundays, is currently undergoing extensive renovation. Weather and time had taken a toll on the building. Broken gargoyles were replaced by plastic, limestone crumbled at the touch. The renovation was expected to cost nearly $180 million.

The new renovation is estimated at $8 billion and will take 6 years.

Canada: "Islamophobia" prof claims she was assaulted at conference; media runs with claims without checking

Canadian Jewish News ran with the story without noting that one of Zine's areas of expertise was just the kind of incident she instigated here, and despite the fact that it didn't obtain any statements from anyone present other than the victimhood-mongering professor. Unfortunately for Jasmin Zine and the Canadian Jewish News, there is considerable evidence impugning the professor's credibility. To top it all off, CJN identified Robert Spencer in the original version of this story as a "white nationalist." After he tweeted at them several times, emailed, and finally threatened legal action, they finally corrected the story, while repeating the original libel in their correction.

Foreign Affairs Minister Chrystia Freeland told the UN Security Council that neo-Nazis, white supremacists and "incels, nativists, and radical anti-globalists" threaten the stability of the country. Seriously? Nothing has been more destabilizing than globalism. Globalism took a wrecking ball to this country. Globalism destroyed our manufacturing sector and outsourced a million jobs. Globalism imposed an annual net fiscal burden on Canadian taxpayers of $20-35 billion, the difference between the taxes paid by low-skilled immigrants and the cost of social services provided to them. Globalism eroded our national sovereignty and cut the nation from its traditional ethno-cultural moorings.

This "Statement of Claim" is quite adamant in denying any connection between its operations and those of any other organization allegedly involved in terrorist activities - including Islamic Relief Worldwide. They are glad to have the support of the Government of Canada through a number of taxpayer initiatives including those associated with the passage of Motion M-103. It is hoped that the two documents will provide the reader with a more balanced view of the issues in play as IRC, the plaintiff, lays charges of defamation against Tom Quiggin et al, the defendants.

Rachel Notley, the Rockefellers and Alberta's landlocked oil by Vivian Krause

At the very least, some form of legal action would have put on court record that the Tar Sands Campaign explicitly funds activist groups — including First Nations — to landlock Canadian oil. The goal of the campaign, as CBC reported in January, is to sabotage all pipeline projects that would export crude oil from Western Canada to lucrative overseas markets.

Breathless Reports About 'Hate Groups' Aim to Panic Americans Into Speech Controls

The collective push to double down on a free-speech atmosphere already challenged post-Christchurch seems to beg the question: is it a surge in "hate" we're witnessing, or a surge in "hate panic"? Groups like the SPLC and ADL engage in the "politics of spectacle." Their brand of anti-racism advocacy is "endemic to a certain kind of 'elite liberalism'" which "totally skew[s] the idea of how racism works and how to begin solving it." For these groups, this might actually be the whole point.

Enemy of the People

The person whose writings Anders Breivik made the most extensive use of was a young Norwegian named Peder Jensen, who had written many sober and learned essays about Islam under the name "Fjordman." Peder had attended the universities of Bergen and Oslo and the American University in Cairo, learned Arabic, earned a master's degree with a thesis on Internet censorship in Iran, and was part of a civilian observer mission on the West Bank in 2002-3. He planned a diplomatic career, only to discover that his frankness about Islam was not welcome at the Norwegian Ministry of Foreign Affairs. He then became a prolific writer on the subject. Unlike the Koran, however, Peder's oeuvre contained not a single word calling for action of the sort of which Breivik was guilty.

Muslim migrant held for extensive damage to centuries-old Paris church

There has been a wave of vandalism of churches all over France recently. The identity of the perpetrator of this particular incident suggests that more than just this case could be a manifestation of Islam's violent contempt for Christianity, the religion of the "most vile of created beings" (Qur'an 98:6).
